

First conference - Climate changes... Trees too

To get off to a good start, the first conference will be given by Antoine Kremer, Research Director at INRA, recipient of the Marcus Wallenberg prize ("Nobel" prize for forest research) in 2006, and laureate of agronomic research at INRA in 2011.

Specialist in ecology, genomics and genetics, he will talk about the relation between climate change and the evolution of trees population: "Climate changes... Trees too..."

No doubt this will be an interesting subject and the opportunity to learn more about climate change and our environment from another point of view.

Want to know more about the programme of this conference cycle ? ↓ Here it is!

You can not join us and attend to the conference? No problem! You may watch the video of the conference (in French only though):